Thomas J. Dunn, Tammany Nominee for Sheriff.

Jacob Ruppert, Jr., had withdrawn from the city ticket he lost little time in getting to the Murray Hill Hotel. He had an hour's interview with Richard Croker. During the conversation Justice Van Wyck expressed great disappointment that Mr. Ruppert had concluded to pull off and said he understood his decision was due chiefly to the fact that Senator Grady was to go on the county ticket. Croker endeavored to convince Van Wyck that he was wrong, but he could not be convinced. Again, Van Wyck intimated strongly that unless Grady were withdrawn or something was done to counteract the popular opposition to the slate which Mr. Croker proposed to submit to the convention, he had practically made up his mind to follow Mr. Ruppert's example.

Croker tried to argue Van Wyck out of his belief that any danger menaced by the "ticket" Tammany might nominate. But the Judge persisted that a change must be made in the county slate or disaster would surely result. He and Mr. Croker went together to Tammany Hall to consult with Mr. Sheehan and other leaders there. They reached the Fourteenth street headquarters about 10 a. m.

Mr. Sheehan had been on duty there for a half hour. The three went into the rooms of the Executive Committee. Bernard J. Kins, Hugh McLaughlin's lieutenant in Kins, joined them there. They were locked with a key. For the next half hour was a scene within. Then Mr. Van Wyck entered and asked for Senator Grady. He had not yet turned up. On Sheehan's return to the Executive Committee room the withdrawal of Grady was again discussed. Justice Van Wyck intimated that much as he liked Grady personally, the attacks upon him since he became a candidate for the nomination and those which would surely follow his nomination would place every other candidate on the defensive and seriously imperil their success.

Ruppert Joins Them.

Jacob Ruppert joined the party just before 11 o'clock, and though he protested for publication that his withdrawal had been in no way influenced by Senator Grady's prospective nomination, it was reported about the hall that to Van Wyck, Croker and Sheehan he advised that at least one other place than District Attorney be given to Grady. The Senator himself appeared after 11 o'clock and was admitted to the conference. Just before he left, Van Wyck respectfully asked for Senator Grady. He had not yet turned up. On Sheehan's return to the Executive Committee room the withdrawal of Grady was again discussed. Justice Van Wyck intimated that much as he liked Grady personally, the attacks upon him since he became a candidate for the nomination and those which would surely follow his nomination would place every other candidate on the defensive and seriously imperil their success.

Then he hastened back to the Executive Committee room. A few minutes later it became known that Grady had withdrawn at the request of Van Wyck, though Croker and Sheehan protested that they would stand by him if he had no other votes in the election.

The doors were then thrown open, and the members of the Executive Committee filed in. The session continued at least half an hour. The slate prepared at the previous conference went through without friction. Senator Grady made a little speech, formally withdrawing from the District Attorney contest. Then the members went to the convention hall above. It was crowded with delegates and spectators.

Mr. Croker, whether from disgust that some of his friends had been thrown off, or because of a business engagement, did not appear at the convention hall. As Mr. Sheehan entered some one shouted "Three cheers for the man who is to lead us to victory!" They were given with a will. Maurice F. Holahan rapped for order about 2:30 p. m., and in doing so delivered a brief speech, which was punctuated with applause.

Keller Was Chairman.

John W. Keller was made permanent chairman. He was escorted to the platform by Thomas S. Brennan and William Pitt Mitchell. Mr. Keller provoked ear-splitting cheers whenever he mentioned the names of William J. Bryan and Robert A. Taft.

Mr. Keller said:

I am here to act rather than to speak. All my life I have been a Democrat, and I have never voted any ticket but the Democratic ticket. (Applause.) And I have never seen the day that I regretted that action. (Applause.) Last year I not only voted, but took the stump for William J. Bryan. (Cheers and applause.) Now, not any time since then have I regretted that action. (Applause.)

forth to the battle and win. (Applause and cheers.)

Former Senator Thomas C. O'Sullivan handed up the platform, which Secretary John B. McGoldrick read. It was received with loud applause.

Van Brunt Nominated.

After the reading of the platform, Judge James A. O'Gorman placed Justice Charles H. Van Brunt in nomination for Supreme Court Justice. He said:

I take the platform to present for your consideration, for the important position of Justice of the Supreme Court, the name of a distinguished Judge, an eminent citizen, and a Democrat whose devotion to the principles of our party has never been questioned. For twenty-eight years the gentleman whom I am about to name has served the bench of important courts in this city. As a Judge of the old Court of Common Pleas, as a Justice of the old General Term of the Supreme Court, in the First Department, and as presiding Justice of the present Appellate Division in the First Department, he has demonstrated the possession of the Democracy of New York County. In convention assembled, heartily endorse the platform of principles adopted by the Democratic City Convention of the Greater New York, ratify the nominations made by that body and recommend the candidates there named to the voters of this county as in every way worthy of the support of every citizen who desires the redemption of the city from the misrule of Republican reform.

We believe that the administration of the Greater New York should reflect the political faith of the majority of its citizens, and therefore favor for this Democratic municipality a Democratic government, responsible to the people through the Democratic party, and we condemn any and every attempt to so divide this Democratic constituency as to make possible the election of any candidate other than a pronounced Democrat as Mayor of the Greater New York.

We denounce the corrupt, extravagant, inefficient and intolerant government which has disgraced our city during the past three years and of which the taxpayers, and the storekeepers, the wage earners, the residents of and the visitors to our city are the victims.

We reiterate the demands of the City Convention for home rule, personal liberty, the repeal of the "Raines" Liquor law, municipal ownership and municipal control of public franchises, the suppression of all "trusts," the reduction in the price of gas used for the purposes of illumination and fuel to the lowest practicable price, just and equal taxation, the strict enforcement of the Eight-Hour law, the direct employment of resident labor in all our public departments, enlarged and efficient school accommodations, rapid transit, prompt and substantial improvement of our water front and the restoration to the people of all their liberties and municipal rights.

We welcome to our cosmopolitan city every one who comes to it desirous of contributing his talents or industry to its development and with the intention of making it his home; but we will not submit to the preference shown non-residents who acquire a technical residence in our city solely for the purpose of holding office. We particularly condemn the discrimination against the teachers in our public schools in the recent appointments of our Republican reform Board of Education.

We condemn the Republican party for depriving the city of New York of a representative on the State Board for the Equalization of Taxes. In the matter of equalizing the assessed valuation of property upon which the State tax is paid this city has no vote, although it pays nearly one-half the tax, and is, therefore, subjected to the outrageous exactions of taxation without representation. The last Democratic Governor appointed a citizen of New York to this Board, but when the Republican party became possessed of power in this State the city's representative was displaced to make room for a rural placeholder. How grievous is this injustice is shown by the addition to the assessed valuation of property in this county upon which State taxes must be paid of $70,000,000 in 1895, of $75,000,000 in 1896, and of $80,000,000 in 1897, making a total in the three years of $224,000,000!

We denounce the Commissioner of Public Works for his wanton disregard of the comfort, convenience, business, health and safety of our citizens in permitting new, costly and serviceable pavements on the streets and avenues of our city to be upturned and destroyed by dilatory and improperly supervised, yet favored, contractors; embankments of earth to be thrown up, trenches to be dug, improperly guarded and unnecessarily left open; the very sidewalks to be encumbered by gigantic pipe, wood, stone and debris, and barricaded with the inscriptions, "Street Closed" to be stretched across our roadways. As a result, trade is paralyzed, the access of our citizens to their homes and business places is made difficult, and under certain circumstances impossible; foul odors and death-breeding gases fill the air; the wealthy remain out of town, the poor suffer, while all our taxpayers realize that they pay the expense of the very work which creates those conditions of discomfort, damage and death.

In support of our candidates and platform we invite the earnest co-operation of every citizen who believes in a free government and Democratic principles, and who favors a liberal administration under which his every right and privilege will be recognized and protected.

of great talents and of great ability that entitle him to a rank with Marshall and Story and Kent.

I take pleasure in presenting to you the name of that distinguished jurist, that noble man, that good citizen, that tried and true Democrat, Charles H. Van Brunt. (Cheers and applause.)

Ex-City Chamberlain T. C. T. Crain and James Lindsey Gordon seconded the nomination of Judge Van Brunt, and he was named unanimously.

Ex-Senator T. C. O'Sullivan, in nominating Francis M. Scott, said:

During three years the people of New York have suffered humiliation and injury. In every department of the city extravagance and inefficiency have been the rule, and in every department in the Police Department of this city, where nothing but demoralization has been the rule, they have been appointing policemen from the shadow of the mountains, who hardly know the way from their beds to the station house (laughter), and whose rules and regulations are those of the spy.

Incumbents in the various city departments have been the rule, but in the department of the Police Department, there has not been an increase of expenditures, but a decrease. This is due to some about by accident, but by the application of honest Democratic principles, and had it not been for the intervention of a Democratic Corporation Council, the Lord knows how far into the depths of perdition this reform government might have dragged our city. (Applause.)

A man who, during the last few months, after the death of his able assistant, was forced to give all his time and attention to the management of cases for the Court of Appeals, fought them there with success to himself and profit to the city, and whose administration of the office of Justice of the Peace has been the admiration of the members of the Bar, we propose him to you to-day, and we propose a man who is an example to men who make a name for the name of Democrat. He is a man able, fearless, calm in judgment, and will bring to the office of Justice of the Peace the honor and the respect of the man chosen to fill that high position. (Applause.)

The offer should be administered fearlessly; it should be above popular clamor, and the more steadfast must be the District Attorney, that the man who is on trial should have a fair and impartial trial. (Applause and cries of "Good, good!")

It requires a man who can distinguish as between the claims and the fortunes; it requires a man whose character is a guarantee that the office is honestly administered; and whose capacity gives to the people the best assurance that their lives and liberties

JACOB RUPPERT, JR., DECLINES THE DEMOCRATIC NOMINATION.

The Son of the Wealthy Brewer Notifies the Tammany Leader of His Withdrawal and Randolph Guggenheimer Is Chosen as Candidate for the Presidency of the Municipal Council.

JACOB RUPPERT, JR. Declines the Gold Democracy and today formally gives notice to the Tammany leader of his withdrawal from the office of President of the Municipal Council. He had been nominated by the party, but he had decided to withdraw. He had been nominated by the party, but he had decided to withdraw. He had been nominated by the party, but he had decided to withdraw.

RANDOLPH GUGGENHEIMER. COLONEL JACOB RUPPERT, JR.

THE JOURNAL gave to its readers another exclusive and important piece of political news yesterday. It Municipal Council. The pubolonel Jacob Rupert, r., as a candidate for the office of resident of Pthe told of the withdrawal of Clication was a surprise to Tammany leaders as well as all the local politicians. They discussed it yesterday, and praised the enterprise that secures such news-news to obtain which means hard, earnest and intelligent effort on the part of the Journal's newsgathers. The Journal realizes that voters are watching eagerly ever Judge Feltner nominated and from others who declared they did not believe that Scott could deliver the National Democratic organization to the Tammany ticket, as he had promised. But Scott was nominated without serious opposition.

Judge Henry M. McKim nominated Judge Henry M. McKim and Mr. Warley Platzek named Edward F. O'Dwyer for Justice of the City Court.

Matrice B. Blumenthal placed Thomas J. Dunn in nomination for Sheriff, and uproarious cheers greeted every mention of Dunn's name.

Senator Samuel J. Foley named William Scholmer for County Clerk, the seconding speech being made by Civil Justice George F. Roesech. Senator Foley got cheers and applause, when he referred to Henry D. Purroy as a "renegade."

Thomas J. Bradley named Isaac Fromme for Register and Ambrose McCall seconded the nomination.

Then Senator Grady mounted the platform to fulfill his agreement to nominate Colonel Gardiner. A storm of applause swept over the hall as he approached, and cries of "Give it to 'em, Tom! Make the newspapers look like suckers!" The Senator, after waiting for the demonstration to cease, began slowly to hit back at his assailants. He said:

Grady's Defence.

I thank you from the bottom of a grateful heart for your very cordial reception of me as I take the platform, not to take up a formally usually assigned to a defeated aspirant for a nomination, but to perform that which I regard as my clear duty to my friends and to this organization. (Great applause.)

My sweet concern is that not one of you will doubt the assurance I now solemnly tender you, and that if my name is not submitted for your consideration, it is because of my act alone, and not because a single man has deserted me under the attacks to which I have been subjected. (Cheers and applause.) Here and now, let me tender my sincere and grateful thanks to both Mr. Croker and Mr. Sheehan. In that as the right here better friendship between warmer and closer, and I have left to my own judgment as to what my course would be to-day, and I follow that judgment fearless of any consequences that may follow. (Long continued applause and cheers.) Let me ask you to believe that I am not retreating under fire. (Applause.) Some of you have known me from my childhood; many of you have been associated with me in this organization for two years. My acquaintance with many of you has been of a more brief duration, but all of you have seen me under fire for my friends, and believe me, I am not less brave in standing up for myself. (Applause.)

I suppose that of all this community, I have been the least concerned because of the newspaper compliments of which I have been the subject. (Laughter.) For forty-four years almost, I have lived in this community; three years of service in the Assembly, five years of service in the Senate, four years, and more of service upon the Police Court bench, which is open to the scrutiny of any man; and I feel the world. (Applause and cheers.) I do not wish to show an act done or injustice committed by me against any man other than myself. (Long continued applause.)

No insinuation is made that there is a man from whom I ever asked a dollar for my official act, and no man ever lived who dared to say he paid me a single dollar for official acts. (Cheers and applause.) And I can take me into my confidence and say that I quite well understood the motive behind every attack that was aimed at me, and I have been the subject of the features of a man, his wife and his mother, and his children, and his brothers and his sisters shall not have their domesticity invaded to sell a paper more or crowd its pages. (Applause.) To all who are in the press (laughter) I give my solemn assurance that, God sparing me my health to discharge the duties of Senator for the year 1898, I will be an advocate of the so-called Anti-Corruption bill with renewed vigor. (Applause.)

He Names Gardiner.

It was not to worry you with this explanation, which, you will remember, I never offered until the last shot had gone out of the journalistic cannon (laughter); it was not for this purpose that I took this platform and invited your attention. The chairman announced that names for the office of District Attorney were to be called. I recognize that the interests of that office call for the very best servant that this organization has at its command. The District Attorney's office, above all things, should be independent of all control save the conscience and the honor and the courage of the man chosen to fill that high position. (Applause.)

The office should be administered fearlessly; it should be above popular clamor, and the more steadfast must be the District Attorney, that the man who is on trial should have a fair and impartial trial. (Applause and cries of "Good, good!") and property are under adequate protection of the law.

I know a man who meets that high standard of excellence; I know a man who, if nominated here, and who, if elected by the people at the polls, will discharge the duties of the office in the manner indicated in my previous remarks. I know a man who is that fortunate, who has culture, who has pedigree—he has such requirements that he might find easy entrance into the ranks of the aristocracy, but who has preferred to cast his lot with the common people, to be a part of them, and to share their burdens, to go down with them in their defeats, and to share only in the general triumph that might come in a victory for their cause. (Applause.) A soldier who has placed bullets in the enemies of his country, and who can be depended upon to exhibit the same courage against any assault that may be made upon the armless citizen without justice and without the exercise and authority of the law. (Applause.)

I submit to you a name, the mention of which should still every Democratic heart throughout the metropolis as a champion of the people, a believer in popular rights, a Democrat, always, following the principles of his party, Colonel Asa Bird Gardiner. (Long continued applause and cheers.)

John W. McIntyre followed in a speech laudatory of Colonel Gardiner, and his nomination was ordered by acclamation. After the candidate for coroner had been named, the County Convention adjourned and the Borough Convention began. There was no opposition to Augustus W. Peters for president of the Borough of Manhattan, and his name was placed on the ticket in a few minutes.

Queen Regent Presides at a Council at Which the Reply to the Woodford Note Was Under Discussion.

Madrid, Oct. 7.—Another Cabinet council, at which the Queen Regent presided, was held at the Royal Palace to-day. Subsequently the Premier admitted that the reply to the note presented by General Woodford had been under discussion, but that no final decision has been taken about the matter.

It was also semi-officially announced to-day that Captain-General Weyler will be recalled from Cuba this month, and that it is probable the Cortes will be dissolved in December, and that a new Parliament will be convened in March.
